

COMPASSION

It's important to have compassion for other people, but it's also important that we practice "self compassion" as well.

Part of practicing self compassion is understanding that each day we make mistakes, have things that make us feel "blah" and things that make us feel "yay!". All these moments make us human!

My oops today was...

My blah today was...

My yay today was...